

CASTLE ASSETS PACK

Thanks so much for downloading this assets pack! I spent a lot of time planning, experimenting, refining, and making all of it work with itself and getting feedback from others, so I hope you find it to be useful. This 'Read Me' section is only intended to give you a little additional context to make the Castle Assets' purpose clearer and help make the assets easier to use.

None of these assets would have gotten put together nearly as quickly, to the quality that it exists now, or possibly would have ever existed if not for the support and feedback I get from my supporters on patreon. If you end up liking what you find here and want to help out (as well as get access to additional patron-supported asset 'booster packs') I'd encourage you to check us out on our Patreon page.

Pack Overview

This pack was designed primarily to... build castles! And in that sense, I focused on building a system of room designs that would smoothly fit together and less so on the decor or furnishings of that castle. So while you'll find 100+ rooms, hallway pieces to fit between them, and the basics to accommodate a combined layout (doors, stairs, etc.) you may want to check out other packs I've released previously to help fill your castle's interior. In the next section you can find a list of links to other assets I've made that thematically make sense with what I'd imagine you typically find in a castle. If you'd like a current master list of all assets I've made, you can find them at the Map Archive at the top of the list.

Companion Assets

Here are links to various assets I've released previously that fit well with the theme of a castle. Past free public packs include Ships & Sailing Assets (beds, stairs, and siege weapons), Tavern Assets (lots of other furniture and smaller props), and Urban Assets (rooftops, flags, fountains, and garden foliage). Please make sure you use the FREEBIE code when going through checkout in order to drop all of those packs to $0.00 as they're intended to be free! You're also welcome to check out the other packs of course, but these are the ones that will have the most thematic overlap with castle-making.

Additionally, many of the smaller, supplemental packs I've made in the past on patreon are also available for purchase on my website and would suit a castle well. Those include Dungeon Assets (tombs, door varieties, furniture, skeletons, statues, and much more), Store Assets (tons of weapons, merchandise, and smaller, detailed props), and the Statue Assets (self-explanatory). All of these assets are made at the battle map scale and are seamlessly compatible with each other, making the acquisition of each set expand your map-making possibilities that much more.

Playing with the Assets

If playing digitally, you can easily save a finished castle as a PNG file (without the background visible) in order to 'drop it in' to your background of choice. I would highly recommend that you preserve your 'working files' of the castles you develop so you can go back and make changes as necessary as well as save different versions of each castle. For piecing assets together I prefer Photoshop; for those not inclined for Photoshop then GIMP is a great, free alternative or others I know have had success using Paint.net.

If playing on a tabletop then you should know that the files inherently come with each grid square measuring a ½ inch. So if you want to print a completed map using a large format printer or a local printing shop, please make sure you print it at 2x its regular file size so that it comes out with a 1 inch grid. This is true whether printing out a complete layout of a castle or individual rooms to place as players enter them.

Completed Maps

As a part of the Public Assets Pack we help manage a Community Library of maps made with the assets I've produced. It's just another way to help get more maps and resources out into the hands of others to use. We always appreciate any submissions to the Community Library, so if you have a map you've put together and would like to share, please feel free to either email it to me at: info@venatusmaps.com or you can also comment with a link to the map on the Library's Reddit post linked above.

Thank you for downloading!
